Vehicle manufacturer celebrates 60 years of automotive excellence

Duncan, SC

Jankel, a leading provider of armored vehicles and survivability solutions, announced today that 2015 marks the company's 60th anniversary of the first vehicle built by its founder Robert Jankel. 60 years ago, Robert a motor sport enthusiast, took his passion and turned it into a successful business, growing from a small garage in Chiswick, West London, to a global organization in three continents. The early years of Jankel focused on building and customizing luxury vehicles under the company's Panther brand. Exclusive models, including the Panther J72 and Panther De Ville, were hand built in Jankel's production facilities located in Brooklands, Weybridge; a location synonymous with British motoring heritage. More recently Jankel has evolved to supply armored and tactical vehicles, and survivability solutions, to internal security forces, police forces, military, government agencies and NGO customers worldwide. This milestone underscores Jankel's commitment to British manufacturing and engineering, working to create market leading products that provide protection, comfort and functionality whatever the requirement. Jankel is the business it is today due, in part, to its talented and dedicated staff, who share Robert's spirit, passion and enthusiasm for the company and its mission. "60 years is an amazing achievement for Jankel" said Andrew Jankel, Chairman and son of founder Robert Jankel. "My Dad was a true entrepreneur; his innovation and creativeness set the foundation on which a global business has grown. His passion is at the heart of everything that Jankel does, encouraging innovation from the team and I am proud that his legacy has been able to live on and grow stronger and stronger since 1955".
